

RLEF MEMBERSHIP POLICY

Last Updated December 2020

PREAMBLE

The Constitution of the Rugby League European Federation states there are two categories of membership: Full and Affiliate. In addition to these categories the RLEF also ranks Observers, as an entry level category.

A member of the RLEF is the organisation recognised as the body responsible for the regulation and / or control of the game of rugby league in that country. There may only be one National Governing Body (NGB) per nation. Observers are recognised by the RLEF however receive no voting rights at General Council meetings.

Nb. This latest policy update ensures as of December 2019 all eligibility criteria for RLEF membership are the same as those applying for International Rugby League (IRL) membership.

An applicant for membership will need to comply with the following criteria:

- The jurisdiction, a country or territory, will be able to demonstrate that it has its own flag and government and that it has complete autonomy over sport within its defined area
- It is recognised by the United Nations (UN) or is recognized as a country within a country which is a member of the UN, or has a National Olympic Committee recognised by the International Olympic Committee

The category of membership reflects the development pathway a NF will travel.

Observer Membership status is awarded to organisations which have a legal entity and basic governance structures however are not yet delivering activities which warrant further membership status. Observer criteria on page 2.

Affiliate Members have a higher standard of governance, deliver a 13-a-side domestic competition and play international games. Affiliate criteria on page 3.

Full Members are deemed to be the most robust and sustainable members delivering good levels of activity including domestic competitions for adults and children, and international matches in at least two separate categories. Full member criteria pages 4-5.
